ETHICS AND THE THEOLOGY OF LIBERATION

ENRIQUE DUSSEL

In Ethics and the Theology of Liberation noted lay theologian Enrique Dussel examines, from a non-classical point of view, such classical themes as sin, Christ, Mary, and the role of women in the Church. The result is a series of startling perspectives on these themes when viewed through the prisms of the poor.

"The currents of liberation theology have found a new direction in Dussel, and his contribution is invaluable. He takes liberation theology and puts it in the free, tonic airs of the process of world history. Anyone wishing to enter into our Latin American situation will find here a truly open door." Alberto Methol Ferré, Uruguayan theologian, member of the CELAM Theologico-pastoral Reflection Team.

"Enrique Dussel occupies a special place in the movement of the theology of liberation. He provides an excellent introduction to Christian thought in Latin America." José Comblin, theologian and social critic, author of Théologie de la ville and Jesus of Nazareth.

ENRIQUE DUSSEL earned his doctorate in philosophy in Madrid and in history at the Sorbonne. He studied church history under Lortz in Mainz and lived for two years with Paul Gauthier in Israel. A committee member for the theological review Concilium, he is now a political refugee from his native Argentina and teaches in Mexico. He is also the President of the Comisión de Historia de la Iglesia en América Latina and is working on its ten-volume series on Latin American church history. His other works include Para una de-strucción de la historia de la ética. Dussel—with Segundo, Gutiérrez, Assmann, and Miranda—has been widely hailed as one of the leading thinkers of the new Latin American theology.
